MR. BRYAN COMES BACK.

Hon. W. J. Bryan compliments the Times Herald on its frankness and candor. The Commoner, edited by the Nebraska chieftain, contains the following editorial:

The Dallas Times Herald has exhibited more frankness and candor than those Texas democrats who favor protection, but who are unwilling to have the name protectionist demonstrated. The Times Herald declares that "protection is the fixed policy of the federal government," and builds up the remainder of its argument upon that assumption. It insists that the man who works in the Texas saw mills is entitled to some "protection." This is the old story of graft and privilege. "We can't stop the graft, therefore let's get our share." "We can't prevent the granting of privileges, therefore why not get some privileges?" This is the logic of the democratic protectionist. He is at the half-way station between a revenue tariff and ultra protection—more than half way toward the protectionist's camp. He is useless as a tariff reformer because he has to spend all his time getting what he calls his share, and when he has secured his share he cannot conscientiously object to other people having their share. The only motto that he can permanently have is "division and silence."

Are the Texas democrats ready to endorse the position taken by the Times Herald? Are they ready to admit that "protection" is the fixed policy of the federal government? If so, why continue the farce of pretending to favor tariff reform or tariff for revenue only? The whole contention of the democratic tariff reformer rests upon the theory that protection is not the fixed policy of the federal government, but that a tariff for revenue only can be a fixed policy of the federal government. The democratic party has a hard task before it when it attempts to overthrow the protective system reared by the republican party, but it is not an impossible task. Those democrats who endorse the position taken by the Times Herald are worse than useless in the tariff reform fight—they are allies of the enemy. They hang about the rear of the marching army and play the part of buhwhackers. They would do a great deal less harm if they announced themselves as protectionists and no longer wore the uniform of the tariff reformer.—Dallas Times Herald.

ON TO TERRELL.

It is evident that the men of Terrell, Kaufman, Mesquite and Dallas mean business and that another interurban will be constructed ere long. The Lancaster Herald says:

Thirty of the strongest financial and business men of Dallas, Mesquite, Forney and Terrell have subscribed all money necessary to form a preliminary interurban company, and the work of surveying and securing right-of-way will commence at once. Since this action on the part of these citizens was taken strong financial institutions have asked to be considered when it came to financing the proposition. The Texas Mesquite says this is the first interurban news of any consequence the paper has ever had the privilege of publishing, and the editor, John E. Davis, thinks the prospect for the early building of the road very bright. We trust he and his people will not be disappointed. They are to be congratulated on their enterprise and push.

On Thursday the promoters held an all-day session in this city and arranged all the preliminaries for this Eastern Texas Traction line. Promoters of the Palestine, Corsicana, Waxahatchie and Dallas Interurban are in the field making a survey and there promises to be something doing after the holidays. Push Texas along. It is up to the builders.—Dallas Times Herald.

Early holiday buying will save trouble to the buyer and to the merchants and the clerks. Put off to the last minute holiday shopping becomes a nightmare.

Just a few more days until Thanksgiving. It won't hurt, however, if some of us get busy a few days in advance and return our thanks right along. We have good cause.

The auto street car is the most up-to-date of twentieth century transportation methods. It carries a good number of passengers and runs on any old street. That should solve the street car question in many places where no regular lines are operated.

Hon. Cone Johnson, candidate for governor, will speak in this city Friday, December 3rd, at 2 o'clock. Mr. Johnson is one of the foremost democrats of the state, a good speaker, a strong man, and in all probability the next governor of Texas. He should be given a cordial welcome here and be heard by all people interested in state issues. Beyond question he will interest you.

There is an army of talent, near-talent and merely alleged talent coveting over the country, inducing local charitable concerns to pay their expenses, and thus avoiding hard work. Every few days one of these blows into town, makes a contract with some local organization to deliver a lecture, or something else, has the local people to hustle the sale of the tickets, pay for the advertising, hall rent, etc., and then slides out of town with the proceeds, often leaving the local organization to foot the bill of expenses from their private purses.

We hear a great deal of discussion and criticism about the frailties of mankind, the failure of the church, the shortcomings of this one and that. Such questions are food for reflection, but one phase of the situation especially appeals to us, and that is that failures are usually made by the individual and that if every individual would live up to his possibilities there would be no failures in the church, in the community or in life. This is a point often overlooked by

The KITCHEN CABINET

It is easy enough to be pleasant when life flows by like a song. But the woman worth while is the one who will smile when everything goes dead wrong. For the test of the heart is trouble, and it always comes with the years, and the smile that is worth the praises of earth is the smile that shines through tears.

Fall House Cleaning Notes.
The terrors of house cleaning will soon be only an unpleasant memory. With the vacuum cleaner to be used in homes that are wired for electricity the cleaning problem is an easy one. In the sensible homes that are not filled with bric-a-brac a room may be cleaned without the upheaval of the family comfort.

Many like to clean the kitchen cabinet or pantries a shelf at a time, after the morning work is done, and before one knows it the dreaded pantry is fresh and in perfect order.

Have plenty of brown bags to wipe down the walls of the rooms and some kept for the floors.

Bare floors with rugs are so sanitary that soon carpets will be the exception.

On a nice, bright day, air the bedding from one room and the clothing from the closet. This might be managed on the regular upstairs sweeping day, just slightly the other rooms enough to save the time. A room at a time this way, when done, one hardly realizes that the house cleaning is done.

Good Ways of Using Up Cold Coffee.
In spice cakes, gingerbreads and such cakes use the coffee in place of milk or water. A custard is delicious flavored with coffee. A delicious dessert may be made of one cupful of strong coffee three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of gelatine, two pints of water and the whites of two eggs. Serve with whipped cream.

As a filling for cake, coffee may be used with the sugar for boiled frosting.

A sauce to be served with vanilla ice cream is made as follows: Scald one cupful of milk, add one cupful of cold coffee, one-third of a cupful of sugar, three-fourths of a tablespoonful of arrow root or a tablespoonful of cornstarch with a speck of salt. Cook for six or eight minutes and serve hot.

the very people who are making the criticisms, that possibly their own lives and neglects are contributing to the failures of which they complain.

AMUSEMENTS.

A Bright Entertainment.
A press notice says:
A bright, neat, melodious entertainment, entirely free from all suggestive characters, a comedy that will attract the attention of sensible people, equipped with appropriate scenery, and a company of unusual excellence. Just what you will enjoy when you see that rural play, "Uncle Josh Jenkins," which will be the offering at the New Temple Theatre next Wednesday night, November 24.

Lyric Was Packed.
The management says:
The Lyric Theatre was packed last night with a highly appreciative audience. Long before the first performance was concluded no more could be admitted.

The Lewis Trio appeared in a new dramatic sketch that told a pretty story full of heart interest, with just enough comedy interspersed to make it well balanced.

Tonight they will present a refined Irish comedy playlet, in which the little girl member of the trio will appear as the little Bowery newsboy. No doubt they will be greeted by a large house.

An Interesting Story.
A press notice says:
It is a matter of record that dramatizations of popular novels are one of the most profitable forms of theatrical enterprise, if the dramatization succeeds in approximating the narrative of the play; but only when it succeeds in reproducing the atmosphere of the book is the dramatized novel a success, and one of the best examples of complete sympathy between the printed story and the acted play is to be found in Neil Twomey's realization of Augusta J. Evans' "St. Elmo." No novel of southern life or indeed no novel of any classification has given the reader a more virile or interesting character than that of St. Elmo Murray, who wars against himself and the world and against his own nobler and better nature until the softening influence of a truly noble girl provides him with the incentive to conquer his evil genius. Mr. Twomey is a dramatic author of experience and every expedient of a master of stagecraft has been employed to reproduce with absolute fidelity to the original the charming southern atmosphere of this famous novel. The book numbers its admirers by the hundred thousands and the play is rapidly gaining the same mood of favor. It will be seen interpreted by an exceptionally able cast at the New Temple Theatre on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 25, matinee and night.

Assumed Responsibility.
Mrs. Malone's patience was much tried by a servant who had a habit of standing around with her mouth open. One day, as the maid waited upon the table, her mouth was open, as usual, and her mistress, giving her a severe look, said:

"Mary, your mouth is open."
"Yessum," replied Mary, "I opened it."

A Wise Kid.
The novelist's small but valuable son had just been brought to judgment for telling a fib. His sobs having died away, he sat for a time in silent thought.
